

GRADUATE CERTIFICATE IN PACS AND POLITICAL MANAGEMENT

The challenges of coordinated political action and campaign finance uncertainty make it more important than ever that professionally trained and savvy leaders manage political action committees. The graduate certificate program in PACs and political management is designed to give professional PAC managers the fundamental skill set to effectively run their organization's political action committee and successfully tackle the daunting realities of political finance and action. The graduate certificate in PACs and political management's five-course curriculum provides the kind of flexibility today's political professionals want most - the ability to tailor course work to suit their particular goals while addressing their organization's needs.

The program was developed in close consultation with leading experts in the PAC, political action, and campaign finance arenas. The resulting certificate work addresses the gamut of skills and knowledge necessary for successful PAC operation, from issue advocacy to solicitation, from fundraising to grassroots campaigns, from budgeting to candidate selection. Like the other certificate programs offered by the Graduate School of Political Management, any student who completes the certificate and successfully applies to the master's program can count all 15 credits towards the political management or legislative affairs master's degree.
